CTPAT

The Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (C-TPAT) is a voluntary supply chain security program led by U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) and focused on improving the security of private companies' supply chains with respect to terrorism.

Our firm was audited about security measures that our firm took against terrorism and other problems by people who were authorised by American Government on 21. July in 2008. Our C-tpat security audit in which security criteria organised by American Government and which USA government wants and things which should be done for this are controlled were extremely successful and inspectors stated that it would be an example for the other firm audit. We are defined as safe in terms of C-TPAT in USA customs.

Our second audit was conducted successfully in June 2015 and since then we still continue our exporting to USA.
